Case No. CV-04-0001

NOTICE OF ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTIONS FOR MISTRIAL AS TO THE BREACH OF CONTRACT CLAIM10
11 THIS MATTER came before the court on Wednesday, December 14, 2005, for hearing of 12 defendant's motion for mistrial as to Count I, the breach of contract claim. Plaintiff appeared by and 13 through his attorney, Colin M. Thompson; defendant appeared by and through its attorneys, David J.
14 Lujan (via telephone) and Ignacio C. Aguigui (via telephone).15 THE COURT, having fully considered the written arguments of defendant and the oral
16 arguments of the parties, denied defendant's motion for mistrial as to Count I, the breach of contract
17 claim.18
19 I. Background20 The following took place during the trial. On Thursday, December 1, 2005, at approximately 21 10:00 a.m., the court charged the jury and the jury commenced deliberations. On December 2, 2005, 22 at approximately 1:15 p.m., the jurors sent a note signed by the foreperson to the court that was 23 shared with the parties. The note stated that the jurors were deadlocked on Verdict Form 2. Verdict
24 Form 2 asks the jurors whether Plaintiff proved by clear and convincing evidence all of the elements
25 of his fraudulent misrepresentation claim against Defendant.

1 In response, the court suggested to the parties that the court give the jurors an additional 2 instruction in the form of a modified Allen charge as set forth in the Ninth Circuit's model jury
3 instruction ("model jury instruction") and allow the jurors more time to deliberate. The court
4 solicited alternative suggestions from counsel of both parties. Plaintiff concurred with the reading of 5 the model jury instruction and allowing the jurors more time to deliberate; Defendant objected, 6 asked for a mistrial, and submitted a variant of the model jury instruction. The court accepted some 7 but not all of Defendant's proposed instruction. Defendant renewed its objection to providing any 8 additional instruction to the jury.

9 To prevent the coercive effect of giving the modified Allen charge fifteen minutes before the 10 jurors were expected to retire for the day and weekend, the court, with the consent of the parties, 11 excused the jurors at approximately 3:15 p.m. The jurors were given the additional instruction in the 12 form of a modified Allen charge on Monday, December 5, 2005, at approximately 9:30 a.m. At 13 Defendant's request, the instruction specifically identified Verdict Form No. 2. The following is the 14 modified Allen charge that the court gave the jury (emphasis not in original):

15 Members of the jury, you have advised that you have been unable to agree upon 16 a verdict as to Verdict Form No. 2. I have decided to suggest a few thoughts to you.

17 As jurors, you have a duty to discuss the case with one another and to deliberate 18 in an effort to reach a unanimous verdict if each of you can do so without violating your 19 individual judgment and conscience. Each of you must decide the case for yourself, but 20 only after you consider the evidence impartially with your fellow jurors. During your 21 deliberations, you should not hesitate to reexamine your own views and change your 22 opinion if you become persuaded that it is wrong. However, you should not change an 23 honest belief as to the weight or effect of the evidence solely because of the opinions of 24 your fellow jurors or for the mere purpose of returning a verdict.

22 All of you are equally honest and conscientious jurors who have heard the same
23 evidence. All of you share an equal desire to arrive at a verdict. Each of you should ask 24 yourself whether you should question the correctness of your present position. If you still 25 cannot arrive at a verdict and you believe that continued deliberations would not be 26 beneficial, then please advise me.

25 I remind you that in your deliberations you are to consider the instructions I have 26 given you as a whole. You should not single out any part of any instruction, including

1 this one, and ignore others. They are all equally important.

2 You may now retire and continue your deliberations.

3 This modified Allen charge was read to the jury and submitted in the jury room as Instruction No.

5 On December 6, 2005, at approximately 9:25 a.m., the jurors sent a note signed by the 6 foreperson indicating that some jurors wanted to notify the court that the jurors were deadlocked and 7 other jurors desired to continue deliberations. The note went further to ask whether a simple majority
8 ruled the decision and asked for further guidance. After conferring with the parties, the court sent a 9 note back to the jurors at approximately 11:25 a.m., right before the jurors' lunch break, referring 10 them to instruction number 63, the instruction on the requirement for a unanimous verdict. The 11 court's note stated: "Your note to me asked if a simple majority rules the decision. Please refer to 12 instruction number 63. If you have other questions let me know."

13 That same day, at approximately 1:20 p.m., about twenty minutes after they returned from 14 their lunch break, the jurors sent a note signed by the foreperson indicating that the jurors were 15 ready to render a verdict. In response, at approximately 2:10 p.m. the court sent a note back to the 16 jury notifying them that, in response to their note, the court would convene at four o'clock.

17 At approximately 4:05 p.m., the court convened. Verdict Form No. 1, corresponding to the 18 breach of contract claim, was returned answered and in favor of plaintiff. Verdict Form No. 2, 19 corresponding to fraudulent misrepresentation, was returned to the court unanswered. In response, 20 the court asked the foreperson whether the jury was deadlocked, to which the foreperson responded
21 in the affirmative. The court asked the foreperson whether there was a probability that the jury could 22 render a unanimous verdict upon additional deliberation, to which the foreperson responded in the 23 negative. The court then asked counsel of both parties whether they would like the court to poll the 24 jurors, to which both parties answered in the negative.

1 II. Analysis

2 Defendant claims that the verdict as to Count 1 (Verdict Form No. 1) was coerced by the 3 court's additional instruction in the form of a modified Allen charge and by the note the court sent to 4 the jurors in response to the jurors question regarding a simple majority. Defendant claims that this 5 coercion necessitates a mistrial as to Count 1.

6 "The district court's deliverance of an 'Allen charge' must be upheld unless it is clear from 7 the record that the charge had an impermissibly coercive effect on the jury." United States v.
8 Lorenzo, 43 F.3d 1303, 1307 (9th Cir. 1995); see Allen v. United States, 164 U.S. 492, 501-02
9 (1896). There are four factors that the court examines to determine the coerciveness of the modified 10 Allen charge: "(1) the form of the instruction; (2) the period of deliberation following the Allen
11 charge; (3) the total time of jury deliberation; and (4) the indicia of coerciveness or pressure upon 12 the jury." United States v. Wills, 88 F.3d 704, 717 (9th Cir. 1996) (quotations omitted) (quoting 13 United States v. Foster, 711 F.2d 871, 874 (9th Cir. 1983)).

14 First, the form of the instruction does not raise a suspicion of coercion. Here, the modified 15 Allen charge specifically identifies Verdict Form No. 2, the fraudulent misrepresentation claim, and 16 not Verdict Form No. 1, the breach of contract claim. With Verdict Form No. 2 specified in the 17 instruction, any coercion that may have occurred as to the breach of contract claim is speculative.

18 Defendant also claims that the note responding to the jurors' question regarding a simple 19 majority is a "de facto Allen charge." An Allen charge is a statement instructing the jury of their 20 duty as jurors to deliberate. However, the note simply refers to Instruction No. 63 which informs the 21 jury of the requirement that the jury return a unanimous verdict. Accordingly, it is not a de facto 22 Allen charge.

23 Furthermore, the length of deliberation following the Allen charge does not raise a suspicion 24 of coercion. A jury verdict reached immediately after an Allen charge may suggest coercion. United 25 States v. Bonam, 772 F.2d 1449, 1451 (9th Cir. 1985). Here, however, there was about eight and 26 one-half hours of non-consecutive deliberation over the course of two days and two lunch breaks.

1 Defendant claims that this amount of time was excessive and caused coercion. However, the length
2 of time, in and of its self, does not give rise to coercion. Furthermore, Defendant misstates how the 3 court should consider the length of deliberation after the jury was given further instructions of the 4 modified Allen charge. Defendant claims that the more time the jurors spend deliberating after being 5 given the modified Allen charge, the more likely that coercion occurred. However, it is the brevity of 6 the deliberation after the instruction that indicates coercion. Id. Accordingly, Defendant's argument
7 disfavors it's position that the modified Allen charge was coercive.

8 The last two factors also do not favor a mistrial. The period of total deliberation lasted less 9 than three days as compared to the length of trial, which lasted approximately twenty days. In 10 addition, there were no indicia of coerciveness. The facts suggest that the jurors were not hesitant to 11 ask the court questions. Furthermore, the jurors, even after given instructions on their duty to 12 deliberate, returned Verdict Form No. 2, the fraudulent misrepresentation claim, signed but 13 otherwise blank. Accordingly, defendant has failed to demonstrate that the modified Allen charge 14 had a coercive impact on deliberations.

15 IT WAS SO ORDERED.

16 DATED this 16th day of December, 2005.
